

Dear Family, Friends, Art Lovers and Collectors,

I hope that summer has been treating you all well! It is sure is hot though, huh?

Last time I wrote, I had just finished hanging artwork at Starbucks. That exhibit is still on, so please stop by the Starbucks at Far West and Hart Lane and check out the new pieces. These are Sunset from County Line, and Screaming Sunset. These two are each the 1st print a limited edition of 200, and are also encompassed by the welded sculptural metal frames. Other pieces that are hanging at Starbucks are Dallas Dawns, Houston's Evening Hues, Overlooking the 360 Bridge, and Twisted at 360. The exhibit will continue at Starbucks until the first week in September, unless I am able to make other arrangements with the manager.

I'm working on some other pieces as well. They have been printed and the metal has been cut to be welded and sculpted, but I am waiting until it rains before welding, and I hope it rains soon!!!

I also just returned from a quick road trip to Manitou Springs, which is located outside Colorado Springs. A new art gallery called Colachi (the name is from Colorado, LA, Chicago) Arts in Manitou Springs is now open. The owner contacted me about exhibiting my work. I met with her, and I really liked what I saw, therefore I left several pieces to hang: Apollo Illuminates Day, A View from Montrose, and Night Falls on Congress Street. While in the Colorado Springs Area, I was able to photograph parts of the Air Force Academy and Garden of the Gods. I plan to create some pieces specifically for Colachi Arts from those two photo excursions. If you would like to read more details and see trip photos, please visit my blog and read about the adventures during my first solo road trip!

If you did not get a chance to sign the Guestbook last time, feel free to visit the page and sign it now!! :)

On a last note, I wanted to show you my Grandma's Bears. She is an awesome bear-maker. Each bear is one-of-a-kind, and they are all soooooo cute!!

Have a Great Weekend!!!

Heather
